

Cartonnage of Nespanetjerenpere, circa 945–718 B.C.E.

The depiction on this mummy case associates its occupant, a priest named Nespanetjerenpere, with divine resurrection. The ram-headed falcon on his chest represents the sun god's nightly journey through the land of the dead, and the small figures on the front represent deities aligned with various parts of his body. Add your own twist to these decorations by adding some color! For a closer look, view this work in our open collection online.
